

Cholesterol metabolism in breast cancer: a multi-cohort, multi-omics evidence chain

Conclusion

Cholesterol genes carry a strong cross-platform ER signature and define immune-relevant subtypes; germline-regulated FDPS expression is a putatively causal protective factor for breast cancer risk.